

Jeremy Parrott has trained English teachers and taught English language and literature at universities in Britain, France, Jordan and Hungary for more than 30 years. He is also a Samuel Beckett scholar and literary onomastician. In parallel with his academic work he has been actively engaged in antiquarian bookselling and the compilation of bibliographies of lesser-known 19th-century British literary authors. In addition to his current research work on All the Year Round he is preparing a bibliography of the lifetime editions of Charles Dickens's works. Since 2015 he has been an Honorary Research Fellow at the University of Buckingham.